

Raspberry Varieties

Raspberries

There are two classes of raspberries, June-bearing (floricane) and everbearing (primocane). June-bearing bear fruit once a season, usually around early summer, on 2-year-old canes. Everbearing have two harvest seasons, usually early summer and later summer or fall.

The lists below represent what was ordered or grown for 2026. If you'd like to check on current availability of a particular variety, please check with a store associate.

Varieties	Description
Boyne	Extremely hardy. Juicy dark red berries excellent for jams, jellies, and freezing. Ripens early midseason. Introduced in 1960 and developed in Morden, Manitoba. (June-bearing)
Canby	An excellent raspberry for eating fresh, canning, or freezing. Dark red, firm berries that maintain color and shape. Very vigorous and productive. Ripens early and is disease resistant. Originated in Oregon. (June-bearing)
Coho	Large, bright red, firm berries. Later ripen time. Berries release easily from the plant making picking easy (Everbearing)
Glencoe	A floricane or summer fruiting raspberry popular for fresh eating. Large fruit with a unique flavor ripens over a long season. (June-bearing)
Heritage	Large dark red fruit with high sugar content and excellent flavor. Very productive with a long harvest season. Ripens midseason. Developed at Washington State University. (June-bearing)

Meeker	Large, sweet, dark red berries with a mild flavor. This superior quality berry is good for fresh eating, freezing, canning, and preserves. Moderate summer crop with heavier, superior fall crop. (Everbearing)
Willamette	Thornless raspberry that yields large intense flavored fruit. Cold hardy to zone 3. (June-bearing)

Bushel & Berry

The Bushel and Berry® Collection: These compact, easy-to-grow plants are fun and beautiful and produce delicious, edible fruit! Available in a range of exciting berry types and flavors, these varieties are perfect for displaying in containers on the porch or patio or planting in the garden for abundant, season-long fruit.

Varieties	Description
Raspberry Shortcake®	Raspberry Shortcake® is a revolutionary thornless raspberry. Its compact nature and rounded growth habit thrive in both a patio pot or in the landscape. Perfect for children and adults, this carefree, nutritious raspberry requires no staking or big garden spaces.